Detailed Description of the Collection

- 2006.24.1 – Gorn, Elliott J., “‘Gouge and Bite, Pull Hair and Scratch’: The Social Significance of Fighting in the Southern Backcountry”, American Historical Review 90, No.1 (February 1985), 88ff.
- 2006.24.2 – Thompson, Martyn P., “The History of Fundamental Law in Political Thought from the French Wars of Religion to the American Revolution”, American Historical Review 91, No.5 (December 1986), 1103ff.
- 2006.24.3 – Herring, George C., “America and Vietnam: The Debate Continues”, American Historical Review 92, No.2 (April 1987), 350ff.
- 2006.24.4 – Hagen, William W., “Seventeenth-Century Crisis in Brandenburg: The Thirty Years’ War, The Destabilization of Serfdom, and the Rise of Absolutism”, American Historical Review 94, No.2 (April 1989), 302ff.
- 2006.24.5 – Matthews, Col. Lloyd J., “Is the Military Profession Legitimate?”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 14ff. Efforts to disqualify the military from full professional status exist, but can they withstand scrutiny?
- 2006.24.6 – Sutton, Geoff, “Comanche: A Warrior Worthy of the Name”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 24ff. The design of the RAH-66 helicopter welds the latest technology to maintenance simplicity. No Army aviation program has placed so much importance on supportability.
- 2006.24.7 – Matthews, Col. Lloyd J., “The Politician as Operational Commander”, Army 46, No.3 (March 1996), 29ff. Whether acting on Napoleonic instincts or as consummate micromanagers, political leaders often view military operations as exercises in crisis management, with themselves as sole managers and the crisis beyond the military’s comprehension.
- 2006.24.8 – O’Keefe, Catherine P., “Powers of Persuasion”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 30ff. The United States placed great emphasis on winning the home front battle during World War II. A collection of posters shows how this side of the war was fought.
- 2006.24.9 – Johnson, Col. Richard H., “The Lethal Legacy of Land Mines”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 34ff. Former battlegrounds worldwide remain laced with mines and other munitions. Doctrinal solutions to full-scale clearing operations are needed.
- 2006.24.10 – Blumenson, Martin, “The Trouble With Anzio”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 40ff. The premise was straightforward: strike straight to Rome from Anzio and break the Italian stalemate. Operationally, however, it became much more complicated.
- 2006.24.11 – Fechtman, Col. Robert H., “22 January 1944: Wounded at Anzio”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 42-43.
- 2006.24.12 – Schofield, Col. Dale W., “A Paratrooper at Anzio”, Army 44, No.1 (January 1994), 47ff.
- 2006.24.13 – Sackton, Lt. Gen. Frank J., “Why We Dropped the Bomb”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 7ff.
- 2006.24.14 – “Gen. Maxwell R. Thurman”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 9.
- 2006.24.15 – Arbona, Lt. Col. Pedro L., “Soldiers, Technology & the 21st Century”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 9ff.

- 2006.24.16 – Beal Jr., Richard B., “Sifting Through History’s Records Brings the OSS into the Daylight”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 14ff.
- 2006.24.17 – Steele, Dennis, “ ‘A Mission of Peace’ in Bosnia”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 16ff. As part of Operation Joint Endeavor, 20,000 U.S. troops will deploy to Bosnia to establish and patrol a zone of separation between Bosnian warring factions.
- 2006.24.18 – Colucci, Frank, “Army Aviation Update”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 20ff. Although the Comanche is the only new Army helicopter, “modernization of the rest of the aviation fleet is essential and inescapable.”
- 2006.24.19 – Kingseed, Col. Cole C., “The Extraordinary Feats of Three ‘Ordinary’ Soldiers”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 28ff. Three soldiers, each awarded the Distinguished Service Cross during World War II, knew how and when to lead.
- 2006.24.20 – Gourley, Scott R., “M8 Armored Gun System”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 36ff. This new system, “ideal for peacekeeping, contingency operations and security operations,” has been approved for low-rate production.
- 2006.24.21 – Chambers, Maj. Christopher M., “An Unlikely Civil War Mentor”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 40ff. The deeds of a great-great-grandfather testify to his courage and dedication, and his service motivates a soldier who serves today.
- 2006.24.22 – Riccardelli, Col. Richard F., “Intelligence in Force-Projection Operations”, Army 46, No.1 (January 1996), 46ff. Advanced technology provides increased means of intelligence gathering that could be crucial in preparing for force-projection missions. The U.S. mission in Haiti proved the range and value of such intelligence.
- 2006.24.23 – Blount, Kerry A., “Wrestling with Information Warfare’s ‘Dark Side’”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 9ff.
- 2006.24.24 – Steele, Dennis, “Spanning the Sava”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 16ff. Despite extraordinary obstacles, Army engineers built a bridge across the Sala River, opening the way for Task Force Eagle to enter Bosnia and begin Operation Joint Endeavor.
- 2006.24.25 – Atkeson, Maj. Gen. Edward B., “The Superpower’s New Challenge”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 20ff. The world’s expectations from the sole remaining superpower are high, and the commitment of U.S. forces to Bosnia is “both a burden and an opportunity.”
- 2006.24.26 – Wood, Col. John R., “Lesson Learned in Information Age Warfare”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 32ff. Today’s soldiers in the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized) Artillery are using hardware and software of the 21st century and learning just what shifts in doctrine, tactics, training and procedures can extract their full potential.
- 2006.24.27 – Clancy, John and Maj. Daniel P. Hughes, “New Technology for Force XXI Artillery”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 46ff. The advanced field artillery tactical data system automates many fire support functions while exchanging digital information across the spectrum.
- 2006.24.28 – Gourley, Scott R., “Soldier of the Future”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 53ff. Technology will not replace the individual soldier, but advancements in equipment that range from weapons to clothing will help soldiers perform better and meet the increased expectations of the next century.
- 2006.24.29 – Krug, Col. Randall E. and Gregory A. Pickell, “SIMITAR Sharpens the Guard”, Army 46, No.2 (February 1996), 57ff. The simulation in training for advanced readiness program gives National Guard soldiers the edge they need to train to standards at their home stations.

- 2006.24.30 – Gourley, Scott R., “U.S. Army Special Operations”, Army 46, No.3 (March 1996), 22ff. Organizational structure has been refined to reflect lessons from recent operations, creating a new command for logistical support and designating geographic areas of responsibility for reserve component civil affairs units.
- 2006.24.31 – Steele, Dennis, “Bosnia Update”, Army 46, No.3 (March 1996), 38ff. As the force assigned to the U.S. sector neared full strength, American soldiers serving in Bosnia settled into the routine of Operation Joint Endeavor, but the millions of mines scattered in the sector began to take their toll.
- 2006.24.32 – Hawkins, William R. “Lessons from the 24th Infantry’s History”, Army 46, No.3 (March 1996), 44ff. By examining the 24th Infantry Division on the eve of the Korean War and as it undertook Operation Desert Storm, lessons can be drawn and applied as the Army faces an era of regional contingencies.
- 2006.24.33 – Kingseed, Col. Cole C., “Restoring the Fighting Spirit”, Army 46, No.3 (March 1996), 48ff. Taking command in mid-battle, three World War II American generals displayed an understanding of what was needed, and the courage and strength to carry through. They left a legacy of exemplary combat leadership.
- 2006.24.34 – Atkeson, Maj. Gen. Edward B., “Impressions of the Cuban Military”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 9ff.
- 2006.24.35 – Hartzog, Gen. William W. and Susan Canedy, “Synergy for the Next Century”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 19ff. The Army is transforming itself into a 21st-century force with a new concept of warfighting.
- 2006.24.36 – Coroalles, Lt. Col. Anthony M., “On War in the Information Age: A Conversation with Carl von Clausewitz”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 24ff. Transcending time in a mock interview, the military strategist and philosopher discusses operations in the information age.
- 2006.24.37 – Haskell, MSgt. Bob, “A Total Force Effort for Peace”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 35ff. Army National Guard soldiers from 27 units were mobilized for Operation Joint Endeavor. They are making a valuable contribution to the operation, and they are as diverse as the nation they represent.
- 2006.24.38 – Colucci, Frank, “The Army’s RAH-66 Comanche”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 38ff. The Comanche is designed to see farther, avoid detection better and orchestrate the battle more efficiently than any scout helicopter before it. The RAH-66 represents a new approach to the battlefields of the next century.
- 2006.24.39 – Kingseed, Col. Cole C., “A ‘Formidable Array of Warriors’”, Army 46, No.5 (May 1996), 46ff. The diverse personalities and leadership styles of the commanders in Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley’s 12th Army Group shaped a powerful and agile force.
- 2006.24.40 – Richardson, Gen. William R., “The ‘Training Revolution’ that Built Today’s Army”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 8ff.
- 2006.24.41 – Blumenson, Martin, “On Entering the Military Profession”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 13ff.

- 2006.24.42 – Atkeson, Maj. Gen. Edward B., “Bosnia Update”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 16ff. Months into their mission, the soldiers of Task Force Eagle continue to maintain the zone of separation in Bosnia established by the Dayton peace accords. NATO’s Operation Joint Endeavor now must play the end game.
- 2006.24.43 – Bluhm Jr., Col. Raymond K., “Courage on Canvas”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 28ff. The extensive and stunning U.S. Army art collection depicts battles and experiences of soldiers through the course of the nation’s history, and it needs a home where the public can appreciate it.
- 2006.24.44 – French, Mary Blake, “Eurosatory 96”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 46ff. The views of the U.S. Army’s leadership and the products of American industry were given international exposure at Eurosatory 96, one of the world’s largest ground forces defense expositions.
- 2006.24.45 – Kingseed, Col. Cole C., “World War II’s Triumvirate of Dual-Theater Commanders”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 51ff. Heading a list of those who commanded in both theaters were three generals who took the experience they gained fighting in the Pacific to lead in Europe.
- 2006.24.46 – O’Donnell, Richard W., “An American Champion: The Modern Olympics’ First Gold Medal Winner”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 57ff. James B. Connolly was determined to participate in the revival of the Olympics in 1896, and he would go on to fight in the Spanish-American War.
- 2006.24.47 – Bedingfield, Gary, “Taking Baseball to War”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 62ff. Organized teams from units that were part of the buildup in Northern Ireland used the great American sport to bolster soldier morale and introduce America to the Irish.
- 2006.24.48 – Rigby, Maj. Gen. Randall L., “Extended-Range, Guided Rockets Could Counter Long-Range Threats”, Army 46, No.9 (September 1996), 64ff. Proliferation of long-range system threatens U.S. forces. The ER-G (extended-range, guided) technology demonstration seeks to extend the reach and increase the precision of the multiple-launch rocket system to meet such threats.
